A presentation from local author, Leslie Compton, for her book, The Forgotten Artist

Much of the evidence of women's struggle for recognition in the arts has disappeared and so have those who have taken part in them. In the 21st Century, women comprised 50 percent of the professional artists. Leslie Compton introduces you to one of those women, her Great-Aunt, Evylena Nunn Miller, through her new book, The Forgotten Artist.

From 6:15 to 6:30

Refreshments and Social Time

From 6:30 to 7:30

More on the history of the Union Labor Movement with a special film, "A Union Man", produced by Musician and Filmmaker, George Mann

I made "A Union Man" in order to leave a reminder of this passion for activists, and especially those hardworking but rarely honored rank-and-filers, worn down by the sheer mass of the deck that is stacked against them... There is so little labor history taught in our schools, so little told of the often brutal struggles of working people to shake a fair wage, decent and safe working conditions...
